Security hole

A PI has demanded you implement something in an insecure way as their project is not a target for hackers.

Hold your cards face down in front of the other players, and allow them each to steal one at